

Instrumentation Technologies: where science and business join forces

Instrumentation Technologies is a company with ambitions. We are the number one supplier in the global high-technology particle accelerator field, high-end instrumentation and control. We are committed to superior quality, reliability and life-long technical support. Our deepest motivation is to make the local milieu part of the global picture, by showing that big stories can be written from Solkan. We are here to attract outstanding people. We are a partner to those who want more.

“Here you can really do the engineer job and contribute your knowledge in developing a state-of-the-art product.”

“Effort, a huge amount of motivation and a constant close touch with the final goals are always required for the successful execution.”

»The company is well established in the accelerator world as one that provides cutting edge technology.«